Rehabilitation for Economically & Socially Underprivileged Trust

Research reveals that there are over 80,000 street children without home and love, living in Bangalore city. Though there are a few organizations, which give care to some of the street children, the need is enormous. RESCUE felt the need for Nireekshanalaya (Place of Hope) where some of the homeless street children in Bangalore, would have an opportunity for permanent change in their lives.

Rescue establishes a relationship with some of the homeless street children ages 7 – 15. These children are invited to stay at Nireekshanalaya Rehabilitation Center to provide them with facilities capable of supplying shelter, nutritious diet, bathing, health care and a safe place to sleep.

All of the children at the center are provided with formal education and their needs are met wholistically until the age of 18-20 years. By that age, they will have been given the necessary training to stand on their own feet either through a degree or vocational training. Throughout their stay, efforts are made to pursue the possibility of reconciling these street children with their families through counseling parents and children (those of whom have living parents and relatives). Rescue assesses the economic status of the relatives and helps in their economic development.

RESCUE needs its own facility:

RESCUE has been renting the residential Home for many years and has been facing a lot of challenges dealing with exploitation by landlords. RESCUE has been seeking to get freedom from these exploiting landlords for a few years.
